ABSTRACT
This presentation is an overview of Dr. Arjee Restar's research on advancing gender equity approaches in public health and health policy fields. Drawing from the Gender Equity Continuum Model and many other frameworks, methodologies, and best practices generated by trans and nonbinary scientists and scholars in the field, Dr. Restar will provide examples of their applications in sexual and reproductive health services, programs, and policies to promote transformative changes towards bodily autonomy and justice.
LEARNING OBJECTIVES
To describe the previous frameworks that shaped areas of discourse, programs, and policies on sexual and reproductive health.
To apply the gender equity continuum model as a pathway to expand sexual and reproductive health services, programs, and policies across gender groups.
